About the trainer:

Leticia Medina is a doctoral candidate at the University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA) and is thoroughly in love with her home city as well as fascinated with traveling and soaking in the culture, language, and food of new places. Leticia deeply appreciates all things language- and literature-related and as such she has more than 12 years of experience in teaching language, literature, and writing at the university level, both at home and abroad.

As the English Language Fellow in Moscow, Leticia shared the multicultural aspects of Texas and the importance of critical analysis in media literacy in a number of presentations. Leticia very much looks forward to sharing her stories with new conversation clubbers and learning their stories as well.
